On December 15, 2021, our Managing Partner, Regina Campbell, Esq., released The Legal Zone's new episode: "Interview with Dr. Teddy Tarr on Grief & How to Deal with it this Holiday Season & Beyond?". This episode details how individuals such as parents or guardians can handle grief during this holiday season and beyond.

Below are Dr. Teddy Tarr's key pieces of advice on dealing with grief:

- 1. Grief Management: Grief is managed over time by both children and adults. Grief hits you when you least expect it—it can even hit you after years during the holidays.
- 2. Intrusive Memories: During the holidays, intrusive memories are part of the biggest problem. You remember every holiday you ever had with that person, and you realize that you are all alone.
- 3. Supportive Partners: Do not expect someone to support your bereavement. Pick out someone whom you can talk to, without having the expectation of them fixing the issue.
- 4. Battlefield Mindset: You need to say to yourself: "I am going to surrender myself to the fact that I've got a battle going on. I have lost this person; it is time to identify what they meant to me. It is important to understand and feel what I have lost."
