Implied Terms in Contracts: Understanding Unwritten Obligations

Implied contract obligations are a necessary part of negotiating contracts. It is not possible for anyone to foresee every possible event in an ongoing business relationship, which makes it impossible to establish a rule for every contingency in commercial agreements. Relying on that part of contract law that deals with implied terms will help you reduce your legal expenses related to drafting and reviewing commercial contracts. It will allow you and your prospective business partners to focus on the more significant areas of business contracts. Read more about the types of implied terms in contracts with this month's new blog

How Miami Came To Challenge New York's Dominance in International Commercial Arbitration

In recent years Miami has risen as a prominent contender in international commercial arbitration, surpassing New York in the number of seated international arbitration cases in 2021, marking a significant shift in the landscape. Miami's proximity to Latin America and its abundant pool of legal professionals fluent in Spanish and Portuguese have been major factors in this shift. This month's article discusses the growing prominence of Miami as a destination for international commercial arbitration, challenging New York's traditional dominance in this area.

Helpful Hints:

Corporate Transparency Act (“CTA”)

Important deadlines to remember:

- Reporting companies in existence prior to Jan 1, 2024: January 1, 2025
- Reporting companies incorporated after January 1, 2024, thru December 31, 2024: within 90 calendar days from effective date of registration.
- Reporting companies incorporated after January 1, 2025, must report within 30 calendar days from effective date of registration.
- Any updates to new or existing companies must be done within 30 days of change.

Who has to report? (Basically Every Company)

- Domestic reporting companies includes any LLC, Corporation or entity created by filing creation documents with a secretary of state or similar office, including Indian tribal offices.

- Foreign reporting companies: include any LLC, Corporation or other entity formed under the laws of a foreign country which is registered to do business in any state or trial jurisdiction in the US.

What has to be reported?

- Beneficial owners: (Includes more people than you would think...not just owners)
- Any individual who directly or indirectly owns or controls at least 25% of the ownership interest in the company.
- Any individual who directly or indirectly exercises “substantial control” over the company.

Substantial control is defined as:

1. Senior officer.
2. Individual who has the authority to appoint and remove officers or the majority of the directors in the company.
3. An individual who makes substantial or important decisions on behalf of the company.
4. An individual who otherwise through another form has substantial control over the company.

There is no limit on the number of beneficial owners that must be reported and can include individuals who exercise substantial control over a business through intermediary entities, contracts, arrangement, understandings or other relationship. This includes but is not limited to the following types of agreements and/or understandings: profit interest rights, options, convertible instruments, equity, stock, voting rights and even non-binding or vesting agreements to purchase any of the foregoing instruments.

Company Applicants: Only applies to companies formed after Jan 1, 2024

Domestic companies: Individual that filed the documents forming the company and person or persons responsible for directing the individual to file the document with the state if a different person than the individual filing the formation documents with the state or tribe.

Foreign companies: Individual that registered the company to business in any state or tribe company and person or persons responsible for directing the individual to register the company to do business in that state or tribe if not the same person as did the original registration.
